Dear Ms. O'Reilly, We are an international web design and marketing company located in the heart of Europe, in Bratislava, Slovakia. Our team consists of young, active and perspective people, whose goal is to make this world a better place by learning, constantly improving our work strategies and coming up with new ways to help people all around the world in improving their businesses.

The idea of the European Union is based on equality and open communication and we refuse to accept its aspirations to decide about us without us and behind closed doors. The TTIP negotiations concern areas in which we, as a company and the citizens of the EU, are involved in such as environmental standards, workers' rights, health or safety, therefore we are asking for full access to them not only for the lobbyists of big business, as it seems to be at the moment, but also for normal, everyday people. These are the real European citizens: people going to their everyday jobs, working hard to provide for their families and improve the economy of the whole European Union. So how is it possible, we ask you, that these people have no idea what the European Union is deciding on their behalf, behind their backs? It is a basic human right to have free access to information and the European Union, as a symbol of democracy and battle for human rights, should remember what her main goals and ideas are.

We believe that the EU should in this sensitive and important case release a list of all the meetings that corporations have had with lawmakers to fulfill the European Union's democratic principles and to respect the rights of its citizens.

Yours sincerely,

Foliovision
