I have 40 years professional experience in auditing, accounting and taxation. My concern is about tax-havens, which are reported to hide from $20 trillion to $32 trillion (80 million jobs) in capital flight. A significant proportion of this vast amount that has been siphoned from OECD economies, has been transferred with the help and on advice from major banks, lawyers and the major accountants, who also audit the "owners" of the hidden assets. Partners and employees of such banks and tax-planning advice firms have a strong vested interest in claiming legality for their schemes from 1980 to date; they pack UK committees as individuals. They should not pack EU committees.
